

learned by J. Woodrich from a drunken tramp, & taken down from him Jan. 1893 by S.B.G.

1. If I had two ships upon the ocean
Both laden with silver & gold,
I'd give them both to my sweet William
My sailor so true & so bold
Both to my Willy - both to my Willy,
My sailor so true & so bold.
2. If I had two wings of an angel,
To fly o'er the ocean so blue
I'd fly to the arms of my Willy
My sailor so bold & so true
Fly to my Willy, &c.

"This was sung by a woman - she was so drunk that she couldn't sing more than these two verses, & she sung 'em over & over - that there was no forgetting 'em. This was out on the line by Tresweare" J. Woodrich, Jan. 1893.
